

Army Nurse Corps - WWII

A Hospital Train Italy 1944

It is estimated that the Army Nurse Corps has more than 100,000 members. They are the backbone of the Army Medical Department. They are the ones who take care of the wounded and sick. They are the ones who give the patient the best of care. They are the ones who make the patient comfortable. They are the ones who make the patient feel better. They are the ones who make the patient feel like they are at home. They are the ones who make the patient feel like they are in the best of hands. They are the ones who make the patient feel like they are in the best of care. They are the ones who make the patient feel like they are in the best of hands. They are the ones who make the patient feel like they are in the best of care.

Western Electric

Army Nurse, Frances Bullock, Army Medical Center, Washington, DC